The sudden emergence of the COVID 19 pandemic truly tested the strength and resilience of every individual. In these trying times when the world is in the midst of the widespread plaque, there are people who still remain steadfast and strong in the occurrence of the dark situations, not just for their welfare but for the sake of other people and organization that they serve.

The school leaders, in particular, who are mandated with the authority to lead their educational institutions continuously perform their duties and responsibility amidst the danger that may possibly harm their health conditions. They indeed face the insurmountable and unprecedented challenges and manifest their leadership skills in order to work for the benefit of the entire school community.

The school leaders are very responsive to the needs of time. They are able to address the needs of the school and its people. They are able to adopt to the guidelines and standards of the New Normal and to the novel set-up of the educational system. They intelligently employ the best measures for the school to protect its people and at the same time continue its school operations and its services for the educational clientele and stakeholders.

In the challenging times, the school leaders are so cooperative with the educational agency and with the government in implementing measures and guidelines as to ensure the safety of everyone. The school leaders maintain health measures within the school not only to observe protocols but also to care for the life of others. They unceasingly implement all the guidelines of the Inter-Agency Task Force (IATF) and of the Department of Education (DepEd) as well.
The school leaders are firm in providing clarity and direction. They make sure that the school is in the right track. Further, they orient the teachers and school personnel of their respective tasks during the pandemic. They also keep on reinventing the school by initiating ways and activities that are in congruence with time and that are inclined with the current trends in education.

They are very inspiring in giving hope. They keep on showing optimism in times of pandemic. The school leaders remain very positive that things may work well for the school, for the teachers and for the learners. They always think that the challenges that we encounter now may motivate us to do better or even attain our utmost best in the field of education.

They also remain focused in order to attain educational goals and outcomes. They are also strategic in accomplishing the school programs, projects and other worthwhile activities that are essential in the attainment of educational objectives.

Though the school leaders are leading in this uncertain period of time, they are still very much willing and so sincere to serve and be a great inspiration to others.
