SCHOOL REWARD SYSTEM FOR TEACHERS

by:
Virginia A. Danque
Teacher III, Capitangan Elementary School

The teachers are said to be the most valuable human resources in school, and they deserve to be appreciated and recognized. It is essential to show reverence and distinction to teachers by means of having a reward system in the school. Intrinsic and extrinsic rewards may be given for them to feel their importance.

The reward system in school is important because it determines the efforts of teachers. The entire school is being made aware of the altruistic efforts of teachers as they execute their jobs regularly in school.

It is a way to appreciate their dedication and commitment. A lot of teachers are truly dedicated and committed. It would be a good practice that they should be valued and appreciated intrinsically and extrinsically.

The school reward system should also recognize the outstanding achievements of teachers, whether academic or non-academic accomplishments. Teachers love to be recognized based on the things that they attained, most especially for the benefit of the school.

By means of the reward system, the school may identify the distinct abilities and talents of teachers. Teachers possess different abilities and talents that need to be discovered and enhanced.

The school reward system may honor the honesty that teachers display regularly in work. We have a lot of honest teachers, and they need to be recognized, for them to feel their real importance and worth.
The school through the reward system may recommend the punctuality of teachers. The punctuality may pertain to the promptness in coming to school and in the submission of school reports.

The school must commend the efficiency and effectiveness of teachers. They will be more inspired to perform their tasks if they will be commended.

The school reward system may highlight the great contributions of teachers to the school. Teachers initiate and lead school programs, projects and activities and they should be recognized for heading those undertakings.

The intrinsic rewards for teachers may be the verbal praises and appreciations of their distinctive accomplishments and deeds while extrinsic rewards may be in the form of certificates, plaques, and medals.

The school reward system is indeed vital in motivating the teachers to always be at their best.

References:

Rewarding Teachers – Your Most Valuable Resource.
https://www.pbisrewards.com/blog/rewarding-teachers-valuable-resource/

The Effectiveness of Rewards and Incentives for Teachers.
https://eric.ed.gov/?id=ED115599