SEGRAGATION MUST GO

by:
Orlan A. Lumantao
Teacher III, Gabaldon Elementary School

“I belong.” A simple phrase with only 2 words yet very tough to achieve.

Many years ago, division, partition, label, group whatever you may call it, those words were not just words. Those words implied discrimination and segregation for vulnerable people.

Today, we all thought that we are already living and a 21st century world where in everybody gets equal opportunity no matter what our gender is, no matter what our economic or socio-economic backgrounds is, young or old, experienced or just “freshly baked.” But we are totally wrong. Many of us are still deprived of basic human rights, many of us cannot afford to decide for themselves because it has been decided already by someone who is superior from us. A lot of us are still cornered with limitations set by a more influential or powerful individual. These segregations do not unify people but instead it divided the mankind. It resulted to some chaos from certain groups who are fighting for their rights that they deserve, groups that are shouting for help because they are unheard of. Up until now, those people are still struggling everyday when they go to work, school or wherever they go. This inequality is not new anymore to all of us because in the course of history, people have been suffering from unfairness, discrimination, and segregation. People have been segregated by the color of their skin, their fate, their culture and even their sexual orientation. Though each nation’s government have been trying their best to create a society where everybody can move freely and be themselves, there are still some issues that needed to be addressed as soon as possible. We all know that it is indeed difficult to have a society where in there are united people that vary from one another.
Let us all hope that our society can really embrace uniqueness. Let us make a community where inclusivity is abundant. A community that is willing to serve and accept no matter who we are. Segregation must go.

References:

https://www.cram.com/essay/Equality-And-Equality-In-Society/P3QRWXLG6EE

https://www.ou.edu/eoo/about#:~:text=Equal%20Opportunity%20is%20the%20right,or%20status%20as%20a%20veteran.