TEACHER, A MOTHER AND A FRIEND FOR THE YOUNG

by:
Blesilda S. Ambrocio
Teacher II, Kinaragan Elementary School

What are the different tasks, duties and obligations of teachers? How do they influence people in the community? These two are the questions that most of the teachers ask.

We all know that teachers have very difficult and serious obligations when it comes to education. They are the ones who have the capacity to impart knowledge and factual information that everyone can use and apply in their everyday lives. They prepare lesson plans, visual aids and other instructional materials that can be used in daily lessons for the young to learn.

But despite of these enormous tasks, there are some situations that the teachers do not only act as mentors or tutors; but also act as actors and actresses who portray different roles. Most of the roles the teacher being played are being a mother and friend. We considered the school as a second home of the students, a teacher also called a second mother of the students. A mother who is not only doing classroom tasks but also doing different duties such as disciplining, imparting and teaching them values, guiding and assisting them to be better and productive individuals.
It is very tough to do those duties but if the teachers have fashion and dedication on their works, they can influence the young generation very easily. As teachers, they should love their work not only for the compensation but also for the willingness to share the talents, skills and knowledge given by God. Learners should feel and realize that they are loved and accepted. Though with the teachers’ hands, the youth will be able to explore and develop physically, mentally, spiritually, socially and morally.

A teacher can also be a friend to a learner. Even though they have generation gap, still a teacher can be someone to laugh, to talk, to help and to trust with. But of course in a way that student should still know their limitations, responsibilities and duties as individuals. A simple advice means a lot for them. They will feel that they are not alone and there are some people who are very much willing to listen and give advice every time they encounter troubles, trials and bitterness.

Always consider that the teachers are not only good in preparing daily lessons also good in dealing different kinds of people with diverse attitudes. They can serve as good role models. They can also make and establish good relationships not only for the students and co-workers but also in the community.

References:

https://link.springer.com/chapter/10.1007/978-0-387-73317-3_47april 2,2019
https://teach.com/what/teachers-change-lives/april8,2019