In some people, they think that being a teacher is an easy job. But the role of a teacher is not just teaching the lessons inside the classroom, but by developing an individual holistically.

Teaching children is not only letting them know how to count, read and write, but also to teach them the reason why they have to be in school and come out to become a responsible and well-rounded individual someday.

Unconsciously, various areas on child’s mental, physical and emotional aspects must be fully develop. We are the molders of future generation that is why we have to be prepared on our daily task. Teacher has a big influence to the young ones. Their young minds need to be fed by learning to be used in their outside world.

Teachers should be conscious on the manner they ‘ve shown to their pupils. In the process of learning, they also learn how to live with others. They must be the good model for their learners. Because what teacher portray and practice project big impact on learners.

Though most times, teachers do not think themselves as role models, they are. Learners spend great deal of time with their teacher and therefore becomes a role model to them. This may have a positive or negative effect on them depending how the teacher treat them.

Nurturing them with values like respect, love and care will definitely leave a mark on their human side. In teaching, the heart of a teacher must be there in able to touch the lives of the learners. If the teacher know how to love their children, they will show good example to them and also influence them to become a better person.
References:

https://teach.com/what/teachers-are-role-models