TEACHER, HOW TO BE YOU?

by:
Lexilyn C. Manlapid

Teachers are ideal models, they have respected image in the society. Ma’am, sir, Madame, teacher, how to be you?

In today’s generation wherein students were so much fond of technology and gadget usage, they are somehow raised differently a far from how me were nurtured years back.

Teacher… teacher… how can I be like you? How can I be treated with so much respect and gratitude? How can I make a change in this generation? All I wanted is just to have a reflection with the same figure of you.

In order to be shaped as a respected teacher of the society here are the few things to keep in mind.

1. A teacher is not only a source of information, but also a source of support and encouragement. Never humiliate your students and never let them down. No matter how angry a teacher is he has to hold his emotion and become firm.

2. Set clear rules and consequences for their violation. Provide reasons for such consequences. It is only fair if everyone knows the rules of the game. Your students will understand what to expect in terms of punishment and thus take more responsibility. In this way they will know the consequences of their actions.

3. Have a respect boundaries. Although being friendly with your students is the right thing to do, there are limits to respect. Getting too close leads to losing your authority as a teacher. It will also confuse students who won’t be able to define the nature of your relationships.

4. Encourage your students to be curious. Stirring interest to your subject is one of the greatest talents, which is also a must for every teacher. No matter how well you can explain the fundamentals, it is all in vain if students just don’t care.

5. Set an example. Regardless of the educational level, the teacher is always a role model. Ideally, you have to set an example of a strong civic stance, moral principles and professionalism. Teachers are looked up to.

6. Create healthy competitive environment. By preparing your students to real life, you make the process of studying much more exciting and useful. Be careful, however, no to turn the competition into a mortal combat. Your goal is to educate every student, not just those who managed to overtake others.

7. ALWAYS plan your lessons. Students understand when you are led by the flow and have no plan, without planning you can’t possibly arrange comprehensive learning.

Last but not least, be compassionate to your students. Teaching is the noblest profession which make any other profession possible, to acquire the ideal teacher’s reflection it will take a lot of courage and dedication to serve the humanity and guide them to the path they have to walk through the fulfillment of their dreams.

Reference:

http://teachassist.net/how-to-be-a-good-teacher/