TEACHERS IN DEALING THEIR PUPILS

by:
Alina P. Lacson, MAED
Teacher III, St. Francis Elementary School

School is a place to discover new learning and rejoice every moment. For every school year there are some make over.

Like the course material, the teachers change and maybe the grades of the pupils also change.

The teacher should understand the abilities of every pupil and keep record of it. Moreover, he should keep his lesson plan and grading system fully organized. He should identify the aspects of the class that should improved and work on it. Teachers organize their plan and make chart about the class progress.

The kindergarten classroom supplies would be incomplete if there are no name tags of the pupils at the very first day. These tags will be very useful for the pupil to start reading and understanding their name letters and at least be familiar on how to pronounce these letters.

These tags will surely help the teachers identify and track any pupil by his name. Attaching the name plates on each pupil’s desk would also be a great idea.

Every teacher has its own plan of managing the class. This would help him organize and keep up to date records on the pupil’s class standing and status. He should organize all the information for better teaching. He should indicate the academic areas of the pupils that are needed to be improved.
The required academic goals of the class can be achieved by proper management and utilizing these tools. These supplies are very helpful for the Teacher to improve the learning atmosphere of the class by proper classroom management and class discipline.

There are different supplies needed for different classes and hence the supplies should be carefully considered. However, some supplies are necessary for almost every class to maintain discipline and conducive for learning.

References:

www.zephyrus.co.uk > class&pupilmanagement

Manage Behaviour in the classroom https://www.theguardian.com