Teacher has a great role and the key element in achieving quality education. The efficiency and effectiveness of individual teacher in the classroom are the most important factors affecting the quality of our educational system. Regardless of the resources provided, the primary source of the learning of students remains on the quality of the classroom teacher.

Teachers should be wise enough to help solve several problems encountered during the teaching-learning process. Like the grade repetition of students, teachers should know how to interpret the result of the evaluation so he can immediately put solutions to the problem.

Teachers’ attendance, punctuality, and effective use of class time greatly affect the quality of our educational system. Teachers’ absences and being late mean losing teaching time among the students which affect learning and performance negatively.

To meet the vision and mission of the Philippine educational system, upon entering the classroom a teacher must be fully prepared with an organized lesson plans, mastery of the subject matter, appropriate teaching materials and classroom conducive to learning as well.

It is also important to talk or have a regular meeting with parents to address all our concerns especially with regards to the success of their children.

Aside from these, it also important for teachers to show love and affection to his students so they can feel that they are very much accepted as a member of the class.
Now that most students are able to reach the classroom and feel the essence of education, teachers should take the necessary steps to be one of those quality teachers in the new millennial.

With all these qualities required, we can achieve quality education which we are longing for because quality learners depend on quality teachers.

Based from these evidences, it is clear that the success and realization of our students’ dreams lie on the quality of the teachers being the fundamental factor in their learning.
