THE FAMILY AND ITS VALUABLE CONTRIBUTION TO THE SOCIETY

by:
Hazel M. Florendo
Applicant

The Family is considered as the smallest unit of the society and members of the community. We inherit our intelligences, heredity, extra ordinary talent and skills. In the modern world, we have two kinds of family. In a typical family, it is composed of five members; Father as head and breadwinner of the family, Mother as the caretaker of her siblings and assistant of her husband, Sister is responsible for the household chores, Brothers is to assist his father in doing some of the heavy task at home like fixing the cabinet, clean the backyard and check all the appliances if doing good. Baby makes the family happy. He or she is the youngest sibling who always needs love and affection. Based from the findings of the some experts and sociologist and anthropologist, Early Filipinos are very industrious and family oriented. They value the kinship, courtship and the traditional or antique system of education. During their time, a woman has a big influence to the family and also to the community. They respect the girl power. They put them on the pedestal.

On the other hand, in accordance to Article 5 Section 1 Family as the smallest unit and member of the community, is composed of children and guardian. Parents are responsible in nurturing their kids. Aside from that, they need to perform their daily obligations and that is the welfare, affection, shelter, education and food. It means that parents have a crucial role in guiding their children most especially in good manners and right conduct. During prehistoric era, parents are Thomasites. They are the one who act as teachers. Papyrus and Alibata are the early tools for writing. During the metal or stone age, they teach their children to become resourceful and creative. Before kids are very lenient and always obey their parents command or advice but now they are cruel and exposed to gadgets that causes violence. Their conviction is distorted because of the Modern World. They enlighten our path through simple storytelling with moral values before they sleep. The status of the educational system in Philippines is spiral and spontaneous. Reading and Writing are the basic or the primary skills that our parents should impart at home. Consequently, Schools offer parental seminars, workshop and recollection to increase enrollees and reunite the family members. Family reunions and get together party are essential for close family ties.

They say mother's knows best. Mother is the light and shining armor of her family. She will do her best to secure and provide quality education for her children. Our parents always grant our favors. In exchange of that, we need to appreciate their undying efforts through obeying their advices and study harder to achieve their dreams in life. One of the things that we need to do is to upgrade our profession through enrolling in a masters or doctoral degree. Even TESDA trainings like NC II will educate us and it can help us to migrate in other countries. Henceforth, our parents will be happy if we will follow their footsteps. Those course or TESDA trainings will greatly help us to apply in abroad. At least we can bring them in other countries. We can spend quality time with them. Since our parents are under Retirement Age, we need to give them something remarkable. Going to somewhere else is their hobbies or leisure time. We should not give them stress or any traumatic problem so that they can enjoy their remaining years to come. We should be thankful to our beloved parents and to our lord almighty for all the blessings that we have. Adios!

References:

www.the family.com.ph