Why education is important in our lives? In order to have a luxurious life or to live a better life, one must be educated. It transforms a person’s well-being. Education encompasses our lives and strengthens our society. It stimulates and develops our minds, providing a deeper and wider understanding of everything that surrounds us.

By studying regularly, people of all ages groups are able to achieve something that is substantial and challenging. Education helps us to think rationally and turn idle hours into something productive and worthwhile. It is not just purely academics and may include reading for leisure activities or as a passion for literature, philosophy, arts and other things as well.

Education is more than just reading, writing and counting numbers. It is one of the most important investments of a country or of an individual for it offers a lot of benefits. It provides the nation with a great source of manpower like doctors, teachers, engineers, lawmakers and others. Through education, people are able to know their rights and in return they also understand their duties and responsibilities in our society making each one of us to be capable of understanding others. As a result, there will be unity.

Education is an essential tool in developing the awareness of the people and the society as well. If a person is knowledgeable, he or she can be able to question authorities for its negligence and discrepancies and be able to seek change over a certain problem where improvement is necessary for the benefit of all people.
Education is indispensable. It empowers individuals to the very essence of life. It helps a person to give their best by their mind and spirit. Getting a good education helps a person gain sufficient if not superb qualifications that would help in getting a good job in the future. A decent employment would probably boost one’s confidence because it takes pride by the fact that you are earning for yourself and also be able to help your family and the society as well.

Education is a very important weapon in reaching our target of doing something that will bring a great impact not just in our lives but in society as well like achieving a personal dream of living a luxurious life or innovating and developing something better than what we already have through scientific experiments.

There is no limit to everything that you can teach yourself, only if you take the interest to learn and grow as an individual and be able to sustain and maintain such hunger for learning. Through all these, education for me is not just a thing, it is a necessity.

Society and knowledge cannot be ever separated into two distinct entities that it is why having or pursuing an education is a must. There is always a time for everything. It’s never too late until you start NOW.
