Have you noticed that our pupils find it hard to concentrate on their homework? Are there times when they cannot remember anymore what they studied the night before? Many of them get low grades because of poor study habits. But how important are study habits to our pupils nowadays? Do they affect the child’s performance and behavior in school?

Study habits simply mean how a pupil manages his time in a way that he can review and study his lessons in school regularly. It becomes a habit of the child just like brushing the teeth after eating, taking a bath every day, washing hands before eating, or saying a prayer before sleeping.

A pupil who developed his study habits could not go to school without studying his lessons. A child can be more intelligent and have self-confidence in class compared to those who do not develop their study habits. A pupil who does not have good study habits cannot do well in class recitation, daily quizzes and has less developed self-confidence, and even cannot reach his ambition in life.

Today, many children were hooked in computer games, watching televisions, and excessive playing. They should balance and manage their time wisely. Pupils are encouraged to be responsible and develop their study habits. With this attitude, surely pupils with good study habits will be successful and progressive someday.
