THE STRICT TEACHER

by:
Winnie B. Victoriano
Teacher II, MNHS-Cabcaben

I am certain that ample of my students perceive me as a strict educator and a number of them might feel apprehensive when I am around. But I am not bothered at all. After all that echoes who I am and my teaching predilection.

Educational practitioners necessitate securing some degree of eminence; younger pupils should recognize them as parents figure to some magnitude. This eventually funds them to execute regulatory control. Student’s behavior requisite to be rules administered. School guidelines may be unequivocally quantified by teachers modestly inferred from the teacher’s actions.

Munro (2016) reported that strict classroom discipline progresses student products and work ethic. School discipline, school uniforms and academic performance as published in the International Journal of Educational Management, the researchers’ chomped facts on classroom discipline, finding that strict, high-discipline countries were the uppermost performing countries scholastically. They also probed uniforms correlate with improved discipline in the classroom.

The argument does not mean that teachers have to be super strict, it is a commitment to be affective to the pupils and have an affectionate tactic, but it does seem that discipline has been overlooked a bit. In reality of teaching practice, this was likely to mean strong and obligatory classroom rules, a concentration on conducts, promptness, and reverence for teaching staff, upshots to poor performance or unfinished schoolwork and a compulsory dress code.
Students might consider strict teachers as terror and unapproachable ones. However, we may look serious at most times, but that does not diminish the idea that teachers, regardless of how strict we could be, remained to be the second parents of pupils whom we cared at much extent.

We can never compromise the manner we are and the mode to approach and handle students. But have a deep plunge and you will apprehend that strict educators are the ones who are most unswerving to hone their students to be disciplined ones.

Partial students may adulate me at the moment. But the discipline that I infused upon them will lead them to podium of victory in the future.

References: