"One looks back with appreciation to the brilliant teachers, but with gratitude to those who touched our human feelings. The curriculum is so much necessary raw material, but warmth is the vital element for the growing plant and for the soul of the child.” » Carl Jung

Teaching is a noble profession, the phrase maybe cliché but it is a phrase that best describes a teacher. Teachers are the shadows of parents showing love and seldom admonishing, reaching out to be creators narrating noble deeds. They play a vital role in inculcating the moral and ethical values in our learners. You have to win their hearts and guide them in their journey not only in academic aspects but also in their journey in life. It is indeed creating a healthy environment for you if you become a part of their world, it will become meaningful when it is done with love and affection. Your teaching will become effective if you do with dedication.

In classroom, cultivation of an innocent mind occurs, a delicate mind usually describes as sponge as it absorbs every detail a teacher instructed. But teachers function is not bounded by imparting knowledge to her pupils. There are many aspects to consider, there are discipline to be followed to be able to produce not simply an intelligent child but a well-mannered child as well.

But of course, being a teacher you are facing a huge audience, you need to interact with a large number of students so you need to make sure that you are treating your children equally. It must create in hearts of every teacher that you make every student to be future oriented, academically proficient, morally upright and socially responsible, culture and heritage sensitive and promoters of a better environment. Let every child feel that you care for them and make them realize their dreams, be the force for making them to drive towards their target.
