THINGS SUCCESFUL TEACHERS DO

by:
Leah D. Policarpio
Teacher III, Sabatan Elementary School

Success doesn’t always come with awards, earned degrees, and rank. A teacher’s success is also measured by the success of his/her students.

A successful teacher is a great teacher to his/her students. They motivate their students and push them to their limits. When they fail, teachers are ready to pick them up and encourage them to try harder and work better.

A successful teacher is a master in his/her own field. Teachers who never stop learning will find it easier to deal with tasks especially in answering students questions. Being knowledgeable in one’s field make him/her more reliable and effective.

A successful teacher is a risk-taker. Taking risks open windows for teachers. This allows them to explore new things in their career and burst out of their bubbles. Taking risks is giving one’s self unlimited opportunities in which one may choose a better path to take.

A successful teacher is always up-to-date. Being updated makes a teacher abreast with new trends in teaching, educational advancements and strategies. Giving students up-to-date knowledge will give them better learning experience and they will seek to learn more.

A successful teacher sets goals with students. As mentioned above, students’ success are also teachers’. A good teacher sets goals with students and helps them achieve their objectives by working with them as a team.
There are so many ways to become a successful teacher. But it will always be the students who can best determine whether you have become successful or not. Students are the best raters of their teachers.

References:

https://www.futureeducators.org/12-things-successful-teachers-do/