In this growing world, not a single person can deny that English is becoming a necessity in everyday lives. It is an imperative skill that helps people to go through with their studies and/or jobs. A skill that a person must possess as early as possible so as to keep up with the ever-demanding society.

Language acquisition starts from 6 months of age to 30+ months. The perfect time to introduce English to the kids aside from their mother tongue.

Early exposure to English language has a lot of advantages. It prepares the kids to the real competition in the society. A kid who can converse in English will most likely be a competent learner in school. Since most of the subjects use English as mode of instructions, the kid will not have a huge struggle in understanding because he already has a foundation of English language.

Most of the growing toddlers’ time is spent with their mother. It’s them that talks with their kids almost all of the time. Thus, branding every mother as the first teachers ever. Mothers can take advantage of this period to teach their kids English. They can use English and their mother tongue alternately. This way, the kid is acquiring two languages at a time.

Even toddlers are familiar with social media. They are exposed to it at early age. This can be a good technique in introducing English to the kids with proper parental guidance. YouTube released an alternative application exclusively for kids. It is a good source of learning since kids can watch a lot of nursery rhymes and other kids’ stuffs that are in English language. In this case, the kids are enjoying without even realizing that they are studying a foreign language.

English can help the kids to be prepared once they start schooling. It could be an asset that will make studying easier for them. Not to mention it can also enhance their interpersonal skills. A crucial skill that makes a learner eloquent.
