WAYS TO BECOME AN EFFECTIVE MENTOR

by:

Celia A. David

St. Francis Elementary School

Teaching profession is a noble task. Noble in the sense that being a teacher, you play different roles: a molder, a mentor and a parent to young children. To make you an effective mentor to many children especially to your pupils, you need to portray some of it. And here are some ways to help you to become an effective mentor.

Focus on what you can give to young children and not what you can get out of being an educator. Never use your profession just to earn a lot of money. Position shouldn't destroy your willingness to educate pupils. Having different position makes educator competes each other. Be a good leader and a good follower in profession. Inspire the young to work heartedly and be happy for what you achieved. Aim high, grow and be confident. Lift up yourself, study and earned knowledge for you and for the learners. Be there for the people. If feel that someone need your help as an adviser or as a parent, be there to support and console anyone. Be willing to mold and educate one's mind. Try to understand individual differences and let anyone develop their talents for the better. Learn to accept the ups and down of your career. No one is perfect. Try to learn from your experience. Be strong. Don't try to put everything in your hand. Learn to accept the truth that learners have their own minds. Don't dominate them or threaten just to study. Serve as an inspiration. Show to others that you are just a human being. You also commit mistakes but you learned and through these you become strong and more confident. Have faith in God. Always thank God for all the blessings and even in your ups and down of your life. Don't lose hope for God is always there for us.
References:

https://blog.hubspot.com/marketing/mentor-tips-positive-impact

https://www.businessnewsdaily.com/3504-how-to-mentor.html

http://prostaff.com/blog/become-better-mentor