WHY GIVE FEEDBACK

by:

BHENVY JAY D. MERIÑO
Teacher III, Mariveles National High School - Cabcaben

There are circumstances that it is difficult to give feedback. We are apprehensive on the prospect that someone will be affronted by our remarks. Nonetheless, it is pertinent to advocate feedback in any body most specifically in scholastic realm. In every undertaking in an organization leaps, feedback should be prioritized.

Feedback pertains to the response or details that materialize due to the demeanor portrayed by a person or faction. In scholastic setting, both optimistic and pessimistic feedback are vital. It extends an impression of devotion and sensitivity that caters accountability for their conduct. Successful feedback illustrates everybody their present degree of execution, and tells them what they ought to accomplish to get better.

The significance of feedback in the work environment is difficult to miscalculate. Sharing data on what can and should be enhanced heightens work measure and complete matters in less time. It assumes critical part in educational process by embracing new information sooner and evade redundant missteps. It assists in acquiring new aptitudes and improve outcomes.

Communication is augmented by feedback. It draws an unmistakable picture and builds transparency. By making a reasonable and legitimate correspondence stream during any sort of collaboration, it saves you the hour of amending somebody's work, lessens mistakes brought about by miscommunication to the least possible, and averts a subsequent stance of the individual who perceived to be a liability.
Though criticism is a common feature of feedback, which is something majority of people are not happy with, it caters candor and trust. Be that as it may, when uttered in the correct manner, it can assist people to grow and build up rapport.

More so, feedback enriches personal and professional progression. It is interwoven with allocating a tenacity to probe, listening raptly and subsequently pondering on the most idyllic means to maximize achievement. It gives constructive analysis and permits to perceive what everybody can contribute to enhance concentration and outcome. It unites individuals and makes a sound communication process.

All these transform individuals in the group and association to be more occupied with the work cycle. Once conveying feedback prospers in the workstation culture, outstanding linkages and amplified passion will be appreciable.

References: