Alternative Assessment is an activity from which a student actually creates an output based on what they had learned. Portfolios, experiments, and oral responses are some. Some teachers were having a hard time teaching those students who are slow-learners. But with this Alternative Assessment, teachers can now identify a student’s weakness, and what skill they are good in. In that way, teachers of different schools, will not guess the student’s feedback about the lesson. In some chances, the students were having difficulties presenting their thoughts and actions because fear is intimidating their little minds. But having these assessments as routine will lessen the student’s inferiority. Amazing isn’t it? From a simple presentation, both students, and teacher’s will benefit. It will lessen the time of grading and traditional testing. Thus, giving the teachers more time to discuss about a certain lesson. With this activity, the student’s will also be confident to comprehend and to express their selves through activities. They can learn, as well as they can improve their selves!

The youth is the hope of our country. They are the ones who will lead the new generation. So we teachers… we better give them this time to express in a way that they will not be stressed, in a way that they will not need to look at the ceilings. In a way that they can improve their selves, in a way that they can get out of their shells. And that what makes Alternative Assessment Effective!
