WORK COMMITMENT

by:
Ma. Cecilia B. Bernabe
Administrative Assistant III SDO Samal Annex

Primarily, everyone works to earn for a living but one should perform the job with genuine commitment. This entails the pledge to offer oneself in the fulfillment of roles in the assigned station. In this competitive world, commitment is indeed very essential. It should mirror the kind of attribute of any employee in the organization.

In order to have a work commitment, you need to establish loyalty to your work and to the workplace. You have to dedicatedly commit yourself to your job and make it as one of your priorities in life. Being loyal also connotes work commitment and it is reflected on your devotion in performing your duties and responsibilities.

Another specific means on how to show work commitment is your punctuality in work. Always be on time in going to the workplace and in the submission of your reports or tasks. Being punctual means that you have the great interest and commitment in work.

Be in one with the organization in attaining goals. A committed employee is also committed to the goals of the organization. This gleans that you are cooperating with the achievements of the objectives of the workplace that you serve. This is expressing your commitment in line with the vision and mission of the organization.

Being proud of the team that you are working with is great. When you are confident of the group that you are with, you are also exerting your best efforts in helping them attain the different activities or undertakings in the office. This also shows your commitment as an employee.
Presenting oneself as a team player. When you are in the team, you should participate actively in the realization of the team goals. By being a dynamic and persistent team player, you are also showing your commitment to work and to the organization.

Working for innovation and progress is another sign of commitment. Since you would like your organization to reach the pinnacle of progress and success, you have to be innovative and progressive. This means that you are contributing to the success of the organization.

Collaborating work with peers would be a great advantage. This is also sharing your ideas with others in order to come up with one output. Since what you are doing it for the sake of work and of the organization, you are indeed showing your commitment.

Taking the initiative is another way of manifesting work commitment. Have the confidence to do a specific task and have the wit to introduce new ideas.

Showing work commitment is easy if you have the passion in doing things not only for your own sake but for the benefit of others and of the organization that you dearly serve.

References:

How to show your loyalty and commitment in the workplace.

https://www.linkedin.com/pulse/how-show-your-loyalty-commitment-workplace-katie-dressler

What is employee commitment?
https://www.effectory.com/knowledge/what-is-employee-commitment/