WORK RELATIONSHIPS

by:
Merlie M. Navarro
Orani National High School Parang - Parang

Workplace relationships are interpersonal relations of everyone in the work between the boss and his subordinates. Many years had passed, many things have changed, improvements and civilizations are everywhere but the relationship of a person towards his workmates is crucial and very important.

Positive relationships at work can build strong and happy life, stress-free environment and satisfactions. It really make sense that the better our relationships at work, the happier and productive someone going to be. A good working relationship gives several benefits. The work becomes more enjoyable. People are more likely innovative and creative.

Secondly, good relationship gives freedom. Instead of spending time and energy overcoming problems with co-workers and boss associated with bad vibes and negativities. All of the time will be focused in doing opportunities. Forming a bond with your superiors and co-workers that can contribute to your success is what they will offer.

Once created a list of colleagues who can devote time building and managing these relationships, workout on how to be good to everyone else. Developing peoples’ skills, identifying relationship needs, scheduling time for a good relations and focus on emotional intelligence. Among other things, this is the ability to recognize emotions, clearly understand the needs of others. Someone should know how to appreciate others, always be positive, manage and limit (have) boundaries, avoid gossiping, and most important is listening actively. People respond to those who truly listen to what they say. Do not talk when they are talking and someone realized who can be trusted.

On a workplace with these kind of relationship can be successful, happier and can achieved the goal easily.

References:
Building Great Work Relationships, Making Work Enjoyable and Productive by Mindtools.

https://www.mindtools.com/pages/article/good-relationships.htm